TAFT VICTORIOUS

Republican Presidential Candidate Sweeps the Country

DEMOCRATIC GOVERNORS

Selected in Several States Carried by Opposition for Head of the Ticket—The House Republican.

The overwhelming victory of William H. Taft over William J. Bryan in the memorable fight for the Presidency being now only a question as to the size of the majority, the chief interest in the election reverts to the close and exciting contests for gubernatorial honors in various states.

While Taft carried nearly every state that had been claimed by his most sanguine friends, he failed to pull the state tickets through in some of the biggest of them.

Notable in Ohio, the latest returns favor the election of Judge Harmon, the Democratic candidate, and there are large Democratic gains in the Legislature.

In Indiana, to the disgust of the Republicans, Thomas R. Marshall, Democrat, is almost certainly elected Governor by a considerable majority, though the Taft plurality there has been somewhat increased above 12,000.

Maryland is apparently the closest state in the Union. Almost complete figures show a Taft lead of 149 votes. It is not unlikely that the electoral vote of that state will be split as it was four years ago.

Missouri is still in doubt. Both sides claim it for President and both sides claim it on the state ticket. Such figures as are available indicate that Bryan has a small plurality, but that Hadley, Republican, may be elected Governor.

Montana has been changed by the latest returns from the Bryan to the Taft column, but seems to have elected a Democratic Governor.

West Virginia, also, seems to have gone for Taft, but to have elected Bennett, Democrat, Governor.

States that may possibly show a different result from that indicated are: Colorado and Nevada, now apparently for Bryan, and Idaho, apparently for Taft.

The pluralities of Taft and Hughes in New York state were somewhat modified by returns received yesterday, though these were not materially changed. Taft's plurality had been raised to 199,585, an increase of about 2,000 from the earliest estimate, and Hughes' plurality for Governor had been reduced to 69,819.

While Taft carried New York City by a plurality of over 15,000, Chandler carried the city by about 50,000, and Tammany Hall put in office all of its important local candidates.

The new National House of Representatives will probably be made up of 218 Republicans and 177 Democrats, 196 votes being necessary to control.

Unofficial returns from the Nineteenth Congressional district show John M. Reynolds to be elected by about 10,000 majority. Cambria gives about 4,500, Blair about 4,500 and Bedford 670. This is the first time Mr. Reynolds has carried his home county. His home ward and home town, both Republican went against him.

The result of the election in the county is shown, unofficially, in the table in this issue.

MENTIONED IN BRIEF

Town Talk and Neighborhood Notes Tensely Told

MANY ITEMS OF INTEREST

THE RUSSELL SAGE FOUNDATION
Dr. Hart to Visit the Juniata Valley This Month.
It is generally known that Mrs. Russell Sage has set aside ten millions of dollars as a memorial to her husband, the late Russell Sage, for the purpose, as stated, "of ameliorating the condition of the poor." This is no doubt the largest donation to purely benevolent purposes ever made in the history of the world.
The trust is called "The Russell Sage Foundation"—a term which suggests a superstructure of corresponding proportions. The impression at first was that this fund was for the benefit of New York City alone. It is now stated on authority that it is distinctly national. This fact gives popular interest to the trust.
It would be a very easy matter to dole out the interest of this vast sum annually to the thousands of institutions and the millions who consider themselves worthy subjects; but the trustees of the Russell Sage Foundation have done the wisest thing they ever yet attempted on the basis of a great charity.
Job says, "I was eyes to the blind, feet to the lame, a father to the poor; and the cause which I knew not I searched out." All this the Foundation may be some day, but for the present the interest alone is being used in investigation—"searching out the cause"—or determining the wisest ways to help those who are in need.
It is to be presumed that the great principles of helping people into the ways of self help, will not be violated and this will apply as fully to communities, municipalities and states as to individuals. Under the direction of John M. Glenn experts are at work studying various fields. Naturally the children come in for a large share of consideration, not only the children in institutions whose food, clothing and education to a degree are guaranteed by public or private charity, but the children who by one agency or another are placed in private families—with a view to their self support, their incorporation into a society as a productive force and their honorable citizenship.
So important is this line of work for children, from social, moral, and economic considerations, and yet so fraught with danger from neglect and a lack of appreciation of obligation to the individual child, that a special commission has been appointed to make a national study of the whole question of "child placing."

Dr. Hastings H. Hart of Chicago is the chairman of this commission. He entered upon his duties April 1st, and while a general study will be made of the whole United States, a special study is being made of six states of which Pennsylvania is one. Dr. Hart came into Pennsylvania July 9, and for a week made Huntingdon his headquarters. He was accompanied by his private secretary and an associate, Prof. Arthur T. Burnell, of New Orleans. At Huntingdon he examined carefully into the work of the Home for Children, which has been in operation since March 1, 1881. As a temporary shelter this institution does not differ from many of its kind, but one unique feature impressed him—it was the provision for supervision.
Something of the plan, purpose, and progress of this fund was known to John M. Glenn, the director of the Sage Foundation, and it was at the special request of Mr. Glenn that Dr. Hart came here to investigate. Dr. Hart said that if this fund for supervision can be completed, Huntingdon and the associated counties will have demonstrated a method that will be a model to the state.
We are asked if the Sage people will not aid the work of the Home. It is plain that to give financial recognition now would cause them to violate a principle and open them at once to innumerable applications for similar aid. What is better, they will help us to help ourselves.

Dr. Hart is authorized to spend six days in Juniata Valley about the middle of November in support of the proposition to complete the $25,000 fund for supervision and in interest of the general work for poor children. This notable recognition should arouse our philanthropic spirit, if not our pride and patriotism.
The places and dates of the meetings will be announced. Any suggestions or inquiries concerning these meetings may be addressed to D. Emmert, Huntingdon, Pa.
After a heavy meal, take a couple of Doan's Kidney Pills, and give your stomach, liver and bowels the help they will need. Regulars bring ease, regular passages of the bowels.

Maple Sugar Cookies
Coffee cup of thick sour cream, one maple sugar, teaspoonful nutmeg, teaspoonful soda, teaspoonful salt dissolve the soda in a little water and to the above mixture add for enough to roll soft as you can handle; sprinkle crumbs of maple sugar over top, press in lightly, cut in any shape you like; square is best, they requiring less handling.

Says Home-Made Mixture Is Easily Prepared, and Cures Weak Kidneys and Bladder.
Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe. Try it:

A well-known druggist here in town is authority that these ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a peculiar healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to remove all blood disorders and cure the Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and fowl, decomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. A GOOD REASON
Bedford People Can Tell You Why It Is So.
Doan's Kidney Pills cure the cause of disease, and that is why the cures are always lasting. This remedy strengthens and tones up the kidneys, helping them to drive out of the body the liquid poisons that cause backache, headache and distressing kidney and urinary complaints. Bedford people testify to permanent cures.
Mrs. D. O. Smith, living on W. Pitt St., Bedford, Pa., says: "My daughter has suffered from kidney trouble for a long time. She had severe pains in her back and loins, she suffered from frequent chills and was often very dizzy. She finally procured a box of Doan's Kidney Pills at Irvine's drug store, and began using them. They proved to be just the remedy she required and they seemed to go at once to the seat of the trouble. She is today much better in every way and gives Doan's Kidney Pills the credit."
For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Farmers' Week at State College
The school of agriculture in The Pennsylvania State College offered a program for Farmers' Week last winter that attracted hundreds of farmers from one-half the counties of the state. The lectures were by practical scientists who pleased their hearers. The next Farmers' Week will begin December 30th and close January 6th. Noted specialists from many states will assist the faculty of the school of agriculture in making the coming meeting the greatest in the history of the state's agriculture. The attendance now promises to be so large that it is necessary to schedule four lectures for the same hour, in order that the visitors may be accommodated. The arrangement will be such that a specialist may select lectures of direct interest to himself throughout each day of the week. The program will be ready for distribution about November 15th. Write for one, addressing "School of Agriculture, State College, Pa."

Monument on Monocacy Battlefield Will Be Dedicated.
The General Assembly of Pennsylvania, by Act approved June 13, 1907, provided for the erection by the State of Pennsylvania, upon the Battlefield of Monocacy, of a monument to commemorate the services of the 67th, 87th and 138th Regiments of Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and appropriated the sum of $5,000 for the purpose.
The Governor, in accordance with the provisions of the Act of Assembly, has fixed Tuesday, November 24, as the day on which the monument will be dedicated, and the Adjutant General, in pursuance thereof, will issue transportation to honorably discharged Pennsylvania soldiers who were members of any of the above named Regiments of Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, to permit them to attend the dedication of the aforesaid monument, under the following regulations:
Transportation will be issued only to applicants who were members of either of the above named regiments, and honorably discharged therefrom.
No application will be considered unless made on proper form, and no transportation will be issued except upon proper application, and to persons legally entitled thereto.
Transportation will be issued only from railway station in Pennsylvania nearest to place of residence of applicant, good from that point to Monocacy, Md., and return, and by the shortest available route.
No payment or allowance is made by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for subsistence, carriage hire, wagon transportation, or Pullman parlor car or sleeping car fares.
The time limit of tickets will be so arranged as to permit persons using same to start sufficiently in advance of date of dedication to visit the battlefield.
The transportation issued will be good going and returning by the same route and will not permit of going by one road and returning by another, either wholly or in part.
In order that transportation may be issued and reach applicants in time, applications must be filed not later than November 12, 1908.
When order for ticket is issued by the Adjutant General further information will be given as to use of same, the hour of dedication, and special train from nearby point, should any be arranged for by the Committee in charge of dedication.
Prompt application should be made for blank form of application, by addressing Thomas J. Stewart, Adjutant General, Harrisburg, Pa.

CAPTURED HERE AS SPY
In 1864, the Writer Was Confined in the County Jail.
The following letter will be of interest to many of the older inhabitants of the town, who will recall the incident of which the writer speaks. Independence, La.
Dear Mr. Editor:
I expect this will strike you almost like a bolt of lightning out of a clear sky.
It was in the summer of 1864 and in the month of July or August, that myself and a companion were arrested in the town of Bedford, charged with being rebel spies. This event was chronicled in the papers of that town and at that time I remember reading it when I was in jail. It commenced something like this, "Yesterday two well-dressed young men were arrested as being rebel spies, etc., etc." Now what I am after is to get a written copy of that item. I know, as a rule, that most all newspapers keep a file and presume that this rule holds good with your publication. If there is some young fellow around the office that will hunt that up for me and mail me an authenticated written copy I will pay him well for his trouble.
During the war and in different parts of the country a number of articles were published concerning me and it is the idle whim of an old man to try and get copies of them; this is my object, nothing more. I have enclosed a dollar bill, merely as a preliminary and to show that I intend to do what I say. If the item that I am trying to get a copy of cannot be found you may do as you please with the dollar, give it to some charity or to the Bryan and Kern fund. Of course, I would like to hear from you.
I know that you are Democratic, or used to be, and in that event I like you very much because if there is anything that I do admire in a political way it is a Pennsylvania Democrat. They go to the polls year in and year out to buck up against that two hundred thousand majority. Talk about the solid south, it is not much more solid than good old Pennsylvania. By the way, the blood of old "Pennsy" flows in my veins; it's of the blue sort too, because my maternal grandmother was born in Pennsylvania and her uncle was one of the signers.
We are all Democrats down this way. If any one can show me how we can consistently be anything else, I would not mind making a change. We can't help our peerless W. J. B. much with our votes, but we have some shekels and are turning loose a few to help along his cause.
I have no ill will against my former Yankee adversaries—we made the fight and lost and that ended it, so far as I am concerned, and most all of us ex-"Johnnie Rebs" feel the same way about it. With much respect I am, Yours very truly
WILLIAM B. PENNEY,
Late of Company B,

BABY'S ITCH EASILY CURED
Infantile Eczema Quickly Relieved by External Use of Oil of Winter-green Compound.
Infantile eczema, which has baffled the skill of the best physicians for so many years, at last seems to be curable—and curable with great ease.
Results of the last two years indicate conclusively that baby's itch, infantile eczema and other skin diseases of children can be very simply cured by the application of a compound composed of oil of winter-green, thymol and glycerine, as in D. D. D. Prescription.
The Rev. Lewis Steoley, of Weatherly, Pa., writes:
"Our baby boy's little face was so dreadfully covered with eczema that blood and water ran from the sores nearly all the time. After using 3 1/2 bottles of D. D. D. Prescription we are so happy to tell you he is entirely cured and the disease has never broken out again. If this letter is in any way a help to other sufferers, you may publish it."
If you have a child which is suffering with this terrible itch, we are sure you will not neglect one hour to give your baby the right kind of relief. We have seen too often how quickly the remedy mentioned above takes the itch away at once and how all the cures seem to be permanent; we have seen this too often to hesitate at all in recommending the remedy for your children. F. W. Jordan, Bedford, Pa.
"Tis a very good world that we live in,
To lend or to spend or to give in.
But to borrow or beg, or get a man's own,
"Tis the very worst world, sir, that ever was known."
—Old Song.

Why Women Miss Opportunity

Almost any one is equal to the occasion—the day after. It is the unexpected moment which upsets things and leaves a humiliating memory or failure to rise to the occasion, whether it be a crisis in social affairs or a family jar. The woman who is equal to whatever happens, day by day, is the woman who gravitates. To be such a woman seems as far, perhaps, from the despairing average of the sex as to win a Carnegie medal. Nevertheless, there are two short and simple mottoes that belong to crises and that carry far. They are, "Don't get angry" and "Don't be afraid."

Anger need not be large or deep to upset affairs. The woman who has just an ordinarily quick temper makes dismal exhibitions of it at exactly the wrong moment. It is never safe, at home or abroad, to have an uncontrolled temper. The woman who has one, be it small or great, is forever at the mercy of events. A controlled temper gives power—the power of a just indignation at the right time. But a temper that goes to pieces and carries its owner with it, just when the right and reasonable thing needs to be done, is the reason of many a feminine failure.

In the roll of missed occasions, fear accounts for a great proportion. The woman who is successful is not a slave of fear. She is not afraid of other human beings. They are "just folks." She is not afraid of following a right impulse, or of meeting a certain amount of ridicule, or of being unpopular when needs must. Fear paralyzes. Courage grasps the occasion. "Don't be angry," "Don't be afraid"—these are words of power.—Harper's Bazaar.

A GOOD STOMACH

Means Good Health, Cheerfulness, Ambition, Persistency and Success.

Relief is not cure; opium will stop the most excruciating pain, but it won't cure the disease.

And it's just the same with alleged dyspepsia cures which contain pepsin. The pepsin will help to digest the food, but the stomach is left in worse condition than it was before.

You don't want pepsin to digest your food; you want the natural juices of your stomach to digest your food. If you have dyspepsia or any stomach trouble, you want to make your stomach so strong that it will digest its own food.

You can make your stomach so strong that you can eat what you want and all you want any time you want it, without distress.

Mi-o-na will cure your dyspepsia or any other stomach trouble by building up the flabby walls, and making the stomach so strong that it will digest food without artificial aid.

In other words, Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia by removing the cause.

F. W. Jordan is the agent for Mi-o-na in Bedford and he says to every reader of The Gazette whose stomach is weak, who has indigestion or dyspepsia, that Mi-o-na is guaranteed to cure or money back.

The price is only 50 cents a box, and one box is all you need to prove that you are on the right road to health and happiness.

"I can't say enough for Mi-o-na tablets; they have done more for me in one week than all the doctors have for the two years I have been under their care, and I will do all I can to recommend it to my friends. You can also use my name in your ad. If you like, for Mi-o-na is better than gold to me. I am like a new man, and am able to work once more for the first time in over a year."—W. A. Ennis, 328 Greet St., Syracuse, N. Y.

Fashions and Fads

Big muffs will prevail again.

Both jabot and collar grow larger.

Belts are somewhat narrower than in the summer.

Marten and black fox are the favorite small furs.

Ottoman hats are more to the front than in years.

Collars are offered to match plumage-covered hats.

Soft satins are most modish for the tailored skirts.

With colored shoes there must be stockings to match.

Braid and covered buttons are favorites for trimming.

Velvet and silk dahlias, in both natural and fancy colors, are seen on many smart hats.

Long, full and flowing cloaks will be worn in the afternoons more than in previous seasons.

Felt is seen occasionally in hats, but is by no means so prominent as satin, ottoman and cloth.

Some of the ostrich plumes on the larger hats are immense, but they are mostly used in medium lengths.

New fancy plaids include such combinations as browns and greens, deep peacock blues and slaty grays.

Smith College Fudge

Melt a quarter cup butter. Mix together in a separate bowl one cup each white and brown sugar, a quarter cupful molasses and a half cup cream. Add to the melted butter and bring to a boil. Cook three minutes, stirring quickly. Add two squares chocolate, grated; cook five minutes, stirring very rapidly at first, but decreasing toward the end. Take from the fire, add a teaspoonful and a half vanilla, then stir constantly until thickened. Pour in a buttered pan and set in a cold place.

The Modesty of Women

Naturally makes them shrink from the delicate questions, the obnoxious examinations, and unpleasant local treatments, which some physicians consider essential in the treatment of diseases of women. Yet, if help can be had, it is better to submit to this ordeal than let the disease grow and spread. The trouble is that so often the woman undergoes all the annoyance and shame for nothing. Thousands of women who have been cured by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription write in appreciation of the cure which dispenses with the examinations and local treatments. There is no other medicine so sure and safe for delicate women as "Favorite Prescription." It cures debilitating drains, irregularity and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures. It is strictly non-alcoholic, non-secret, all its ingredients being printed on its bottle wrapper; contains no deleterious or habit-forming drugs, and every native medicinal root entering into its composition has the full endorsement of those most eminent of the several schools of medical practice. Some of these numerous and strongest of professional endorsements of its ingredients will be found in a pamphlet wrapped around the bottle, also in a booklet mailed free on request, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y. These professional endorsements should have far more weight than any amount of the ordinary lay, or non-professional testimonials.

The most intelligent women now-a-days insist on knowing what they take as medicine instead of opening their mouths like a lot of young birds and gulping down whatever is offered them. "Favorite Prescription" is of known composition. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay expense of mailing only. Send to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound. If sick consult the Doctor, free of charge by letter. All such communications are held sacredly confidential.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels.

HOUSEHOLD NOTES

A taut wire stretched along the pantry wall is a good holder for all tin lids. Slip them back of it and the knobs will hold them in place.

If milk is heated until lukewarm and then quickly chilled, there will be much more cream.

Curtains are easily run on brass rods if a thimble is first placed on the end of the rod.

When milk has burned pour it at once into a pitcher and stand it in a basin of cold water until it is cool, when it will be found to be quite free from the burned smell and taste. Also when anything has burned in the double boiler, instead of replenishing the steamer part with hot water, use cold for the same effect.

If your soup is found too salty add a few slices of raw potatoes and cook a little longer. The potato will absorb the surplus salt.

To keep the coffee pot free from a strong odor put a pinch of bicarbonate of soda in it once a week, fill it up with water and boil slowly or simmer for a quarter of an hour.

A woman who makes delectable lemon pie sometimes adds the pulp of a banana to the custard before turning into the paste-lined tin. She covers the pie with a meringue when it comes from the oven.

After naphtha-cleaning gloves, laces, ribbons, etc., at home, they may be placed directly upon a steam radiator, and will be found to be dry in half the time ordinarily required, and the odor will entirely disappear in less than an hour's time.

When roasting meat in an open pan wet a clean white muslin cloth and lay over the top of the meat. It will keep from getting hard and does not require basting so often, and the meat is much nicer.

A flat brass button sewed on the corner of a dishcloth will be a great help in washing dishes. It can be used as a "scratcher," and will not injure the finest china.

If you suffer from constipation and liver trouble Foley's Orino Laxative will cure you permanently by stimulating the digestive organs so they will act naturally. Foley's Orino Laxative does not gripe, is pleasant to take and you do not have to take laxatives continually after taking Orino. Why continue to be the slave of pills and tablets? Ed. D. Heckerman.

A Recipe

Take energy and patience, And mix them well together. With plenty of good nature That laughs in cloudy weather. Add earnestness of purpose In everything you plan, And much determination To do the best you can. Do this with conscientious care, And I think that you'll confess You've never found a better rule For making true success.

—Anna M. Pratt.

A Hint to Correspondents

Nearly every new correspondent has to be taught how to spell the words, business, busy, cemetery, and some other common words. Several have not yet learned to begin spelling the days of the week with a capital letter and to spell them out. Don't write Sun, Mon, Wens, Fri, Sat, if you have strength enough to spell the whole word. Begin all names of persons and places with capital letters. If a place has a double name like Mann's Cove, Milliken's Cove, Roaring Spring, West End, Yellow Creek, Piney Creek, Clear Ridge, begin each with a capital letter. Punctuate, and make paragraphs about like you see in the letters in the paper. It will save the editor and machine operator pecks of trouble, and correspondents will find it just as easy to do the work right as wrong. In fact it is easier after you learn how. Observe how others write. A paragraph means what you write on one thing.

If a newspaper reporter, after spending thirty minutes in an attempt to translate a written account of a surprise party, were to put into print his thoughts while he was laboring over the manuscript, this is probably what would appear, epithets of course being omitted:

Why don't people learn to write better? Why do they make their n's like u's, their i's like m's, and their a's like o's? Why don't they say when and where the event happened? And then they blame the editor if the names are misspelled.

RAW LUNGS

When the lungs are sore and inflamed, the germs of pneumonia and consumption find lodgment and multiply. Foley's Honey and Tar kills the cough germs, cures the most obstinate racking cough, heals the lungs, and prevents serious results. The genuine is in the yellow package. Ed. D. Heckerman.

A Smile From a Stranger

Most of us owe debts of gratitude to strangers whose kindly smile has sent sunshine into our aching hearts, and has given us courage when we were disheartened.

It is a great thing to go through life with a smiling face. It costs little, but who can over estimate its value?

Think how the pleasure of life would be increased if we met smiling faces everywhere—faces which radiate hope, sunshine and cheer! What a joy it would be to travel in a gallery of living pictures, radiating hope and courage!

Who can estimate what beautiful, smiling faces mean to the wretched and the downcast—those whose life burdens are crushing them?

Many of us carry precious memories of smiling faces which we glimpsed but once, but whose sweet, uplifting expression will remain with us forever.—From Success Magazine.

Winter blasts, causing pneumonia, pleurisy and consumption will soon be here. Cure your cough now, and strengthen your lungs with Foley's Honey and Tar. Do not risk starting the winter with weak lungs, when Foley's Honey and Tar will cure the most obstinate coughs and colds, and prevent serious results. Ed. D. Heckerman.

Piano Hints

A fine cheesecloth, or, better yet, a silk handkerchief, should be employed in dusting.

Neither hem nor seam should be permitted on the dusting cloth as this will scratch the wood.

The carved legs should be dusted with a soft brush, as should be also the rack and other ornamental trimmings.

To restore the whiteness of the keys, wash lightly with a teaspoonful of hydro super oxide dissolved in a pint of water. Be very careful that none of this gets into the instrument or between the keys.

No piano, whether upright or grand, should ever stand close against a wall.

The direct rays of the sun, dampness and draughts should all be avoided. Once a month the piano should be opened and searched for moths which are likely to install themselves in the felting.

Cloudy spots may be removed by pouring a few drops of benzine on the dust cloth and rubbing very lightly in the same direction.

The Popular Science Monthly

The Popular Science Monthly for November reprints an article by the late Dr. Langley, secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, which was published shortly before his death in the proceedings of the institution. It shows how nearly he came to solving the problem, which the Wright brothers have attacked so successfully, largely, it should be known, as a result of the preceding theoretical and applied work of Dr. Langley.

Itching, torturing skin eruptions disfigure, annoy, drive one wild. Doan's Ointment brings quick relief and lasting cures. Fifty cents at any drug store.

Only a Salute.

"One of our early reporters had a murder case to defeat. I a Montana official, and he had a hard case. When it came time to sit up he asked permission to take a recess for ten minutes, and during that ten minutes he went over to the hotel to get an inspiration. When he came back he walked out in front of the jury and said: 'As regards to this case, this is the greatest country on which the sun ever shone. We are the greatest people. We have the greatest destiny. Why, gentlemen, every time one of the ships of our glorious navy sails into the ports of the world with the stars and stripes flying every ship of that power and every ship of every other power fires a salute from great cannon in her honor, and gentlemen of the jury, if you listen to what the secondarily opposition of this man has to say you are about to incarcerate in prison or hang by the neck my poor, unfortunate client simply because he on one occasion fired one small revolver shot at a man who unfortunately died on that occasion'—Saturday Evening Post.

The Editor on Carelessness.

"Yes," said the editor as he put his gum brush into the ink bottle and tried to paste on a clipping with his pen. "Yes, the great fault of newspaper contributors is carelessness."

"Indeed," he continued as he dropped the copy he had been writing into the wastebasket and marked "Editorial" across the corner of a poem entitled "An Ode to Death." "Contributors are terribly careless."

"You would be surprised," said he as he clipped out a column of fashion notes and labeled them "Farm," "to see the slipshod writing that comes into the editorial sanctum."

"Misspelled, unparaphrased, written on both sides of the sheet, illegible, ungrammatical stuff. Contributors are terribly careless. They are!"

Just then the office boy came in with that dictatorial and autocratic manner he has and demanded more copy, and the editor handed him the love letter he had just written to his sweetheart.—London Globe.

Cure Your Dandruff

Why? Because it is annoying, untidy. And mostly, because it almost invariably leads to baldness. Cure it, and save your hair. Get more, too, at the same time. All easily done with Ayer's Hair Vigor, new improved formula. Stop this formation of dandruff!

Does not change the color of the hair.

Formula with each bottle. Show it to your doctor. Ask him about it, then do as he says.

The new Ayer's Hair Vigor will certainly do this work, because, first of all, it destroys the germs which are the original cause of dandruff. Having given this aid, nature completes the cure. The scalp is restored to a perfectly healthy condition.—Made by the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

Doomsday Book.

The Doomsday Book is a British institution. It is a book of the general survey of England, commenced in the reign of William I (the Conqueror), about 1080, some say about 1086. It was intended to be a "register to determine the right in the tenure of estates, to discover the extent of any man's land, to fix his homage and to settle the question of the military aid he was bound to furnish."

Curious Postoffice

The smallest, simplest and best protected postoffice in the world is in the Straits of Magellan and it has been there for many years. It is just like a small painted cask, and is chained to the rocks of the extreme cape in such a manner that it floats free, opposite Terra del Fuego. Each ship that passes that way sends a boat to take letters out and put others in.—Home Notes.

TUESDAY'S ELECTION

The results of Tuesday's election show that the people of the nation are satisfied to have a man exalted to the highest position in their gift use his official position to whip into line those of his party who believe or doubt more or less than his standard, and compel the nomination of a successor of his naming. They further sanctioned his having degraded his exalted station by taking an active part in the contest and using means and methods never before resorted to by a President of the whole American people.

Rockefeller's letter announcing his preference for Taft was a signal for corporate activity from coast to coast, and the succeeding letter of the President branding it as a "campaign scheme held in line the anti-trust element. Thus was secured the trust influence and the influence of the opposition, and the returns show the result.

The nation will await with interest the carrying out of "My Policies" by a President elected in large measure by trust influences.

The return of Cannon to the House and his re-election as speaker point to trouble when the matter of that promised revision of the tariff "by its friends" is taken up. He thwarted Roosevelt's intentions and he is likely to deal with Roosevelt's successor in a similar manner. The heavy hand of the favored few will most certainly show itself. The publication of the contributions to the Taft fund, if they are ever made public, will be an authentic index to the work that will be done on the tariff by the next Congress.

MRS. DELILAH ENFIELD

Oldest Resident of Bedford Passed Away Sunday.

Bedford lost its oldest resident and a very estimable woman last Sunday night, November 1, when Mrs. Delilah Enfield passed away at the home of her son, Dr. Americus Enfield, Penn and Thomas Streets, after an illness of a few weeks, at the advanced age of 95 years, 11 months and 27 days.

She was born in Salisbury, Somerset County, on November 4, 1812, and was the last of a family of ten children of Samuel and Mary Findlay. In 1830 she was married to George Enfield, who died in 1889, and came to this place about 25 years ago. Mrs. Enfield was a very active and energetic woman and during the last years of her life enjoyed excellent health and retained her faculties until the end. Several weeks ago she made a visit to her daughter in Cumberland.

Deceased leaves to survive her two sons and two daughters: Mrs. Mary Bittinger of Cumberland, Mrs. Amanda Dugan of Columbia, William of San Francisco, Cal., and Dr. A. Enfield of this place.

Funeral services were held at the late residence of deceased at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Rev. J. Albert Eyer and Dr. M. L. Culler officiating. Interment in the Bedford Cemetery.

"Thou art gone, the abyss of Heaven
Hast swallowed up thy form, but on my heart
Deeply hath sunk the lesson thou hast given
And shall not soon depart.
He who from zone to zone
Guides through the boundless sky
thy certain flight,
In the long way that I must tread
alone
Will lead my steps aright."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

My Lady And Perkins.

By C. B. LEWIS.

Copyrighted, 1907, by Associated Literary Press.

My lady has reached the age of sixty. She has become nearsighted and a bit deaf. She was rheumatic, and she had a slight stoop and somewhat of an uncertain gait. But for the vigilance of her maid, Perkins, she would have looked every month of her age and passed for the old woman she was.

It was Perkins who skillfully padded her gowns and applied the dainty pink and white complexion and who gave her daily lessons in the art of remaining a young woman.

It was Perkins who had told her for the last dozen years that she looked under forty and who made each birthday count one less instead of one more. In her way, and it was a good way. Perkins was a jewel of the first water.

My lady had wealth. When, at the age of forty, she had married again only to become a widow for the second time within three years, her cash income had been largely added to.

At fifty a third ardent suitor appeared, but my lady decided to preserve her widowhood and retain control of her money. At sixty she had herself and she had Perkins. Five years previously, when the woman had come to her, she had said:

"Perkins, I am a frivolous thing of thirty-five."

"Yes'm," replied Perkins as she mentally added twenty years to the figures. "I am frivolous, but not quite a fool."

"No'm."

"And I want you to help me from becoming one."

"Certainly, m'm."

"If you see me flirting or acting giddy, as most young women are apt to do at times, put your foot down and stop it."

"I will, m'm."

"Should I really fall in love, Perkins—should I be so giddy and frivolous and foolish as to think of marriage, put both feet down and bring me to my senses ere it is too late. That's all this evening, Perkins."

Thus Perkins became lady's maid, chaperon and adviser combined. She was the keeper of the keys and the watchdog of the treasury. She was a good judge of human character and a close estimator of how far a flirtation could go and still come under the head of harmless.

On several occasions, when things had gone their limit, she had announced the fact, and my lady had turned her back on the affair.

It was one season at Nice when things went wrong. Perkins was finding it hard work to keep the wrinkles rubbed away. My lady was beginning to notice her own stoop and limp, and she was almost ready to acknowledge that she felt all of forty-eight and a few minutes over.

Count Dubois made his appearance at this opportune moment. He was a real French count, if that was worth anything. He was also a spendthrift and a gambler. He had about reached the end of his tether when he got around to Nice on a tour of adventure and ran across my lady and her friends.

His reputation soon caught up with him, but in Europe a title excuses much. There was almost at once an open flirtation between my lady and the count, and for a time the Argus-eyed Perkins watched it and said nothing.

However, when Mrs. Grundy had begun to nod and wink and whisper behind her fan, she took my lady in hand. On all previous occasions the dear old thing had heaved a sigh or two, shrugged her shoulders and submitted to the inevitable, but on this occasion, to Perkins' great surprise, she proved obdurate.

"Perkins, I am surely in love," she replied.

"But you can't be. You are too—too young."

"But I know that I am in love, and I shall marry the count, poor boy."

Perkins came back at her with enough statistics to swamp the characters of three or four adventures, but my lady had made up her mind and nothing could move her. Perkins knew when to argue and when to conceal herself behind the portieres.

Before the count left the parlors next day she was in possession of all needed particulars. There was to be a yachting party of a dozen friends, and during the trip the engagement would be announced—two weeks later in a marriage and a honeymoon trip.

The yacht would not make the harbor until a late hour in the evening, and the count would call for my lady in a carriage. He further threw out a suggestion. It was that Perkins should look in her room at a certain hour to prevent her wandering about Nice during the evening hours and getting lost or falling off the quay.

Human jewels such as she had been known to disappear off the face of the earth while innocently taking the night air of that charming resort.

"But Perkins won't be advertised for as a lost jewel," said Perkins to herself as the count left the house, and for the next few hours her face wore an expression that ought to have put my lady on her guard, but didn't.

She was so mild and gentle and affectionate and she seemed so far from suspecting any sort of plot that she could have asked for a raise of salary and got it on the spot. As she didn't ask, it was not offered.

Nether did my lady think it best to tell her that she would soon be out of a place. That was another thing the count had suggested—the very last thing as he was leaving the house—that as soon as the marriage took place Perkins could go hang. My lady simply patted her faithful servant and companion on the back and said that she should miss her when she died.

The day on which my lady was to begin her yachting trip dawned auspiciously. She had looked into her heart. She had felt the stir and flutter of love and romance. She had heard that one lady had said that she was old enough to be the count's grandmother.

She looked into her glass and indignantly repudiated the slander. Not a gray hair in her head; not a wrinkle on her face; not a wobble to her knees as she stood there and felt how good it was to be young again. Even her worst enemy must have been forced to admit that day the complexion just finished by Perkins was a three-A brand, and that the movements of the old dame around the room had all the litherness of girlhood.

After the midday lunch she became petulant and nervous and finally drove Perkins away to sit by herself. She thus secured an interval in which to pack a small trunk with the things she would need aboard the yacht. At the dinner hour she had the meal served in her rooms. She ate sparingly, but drank rather more than usual of her favorite brand of wine. It is needless to add that the bottle passed through the hands of Perkins before taking its place on the table.

Half an hour after dinner my lady felt drowsy and retired for a nap. She could sleep for two or three hours and then have plenty of time to turn the key on the unsuspecting Perkins.

Her puffs were laid aside for the nonce, her complexion secured against accident, and she laid her head on the pillow and fell asleep like a tired child—or a grandmother. However, when the count drove up soon after 10 o'clock he found my lady ready and waiting, and the drive to the quay was quickly made.

En route he wanted to inquire if there had been much trouble in disposing of the watchdog, but as his companion seemed disinclined for conversation he decided to let the point stand over until later. They went on board the yacht at once, and my lady was handed over to the care of the stewardess. She might have inquired if the rest of the party had come aboard yet, but she didn't. She didn't seem to care.

The count and the captain had had their morning cocktails and were hungrily awaiting the appearance of my lady and breakfast, when she sailed into the cabin after a night of sleep broken at intervals by chuckles that seemed to chuckle of their own accord.

She had a smile of serenity on her face, and she sat down to the table with a good appetite. The captain doffed his cap and made his bow. The count started to do the same thing, but caught his breath and then yelled.

It was Perkins—Perkins the jewel—Perkins the watchdog—Perkins the all-around best ever. She was calm. She was tranquil. She was very much at home.

She excused the absence of my lady on the grounds of a very pressing engagement and promised, as her substitute, to enjoy every hour of the trip so kindly planned and so auspiciously begun.

It was a breakfast with firecrackers and Roman candles tied to it. Every minute or two there was a snapping and crackling, and every minute or two something would go off. The count cursed and raved and tore his hair, the captain grinned and chuckled and Perkins said she hadn't enjoyed a breakfast so much in many moons.

It was soon discovered that she and the count were not en rapport and couldn't view matters in the same light. In fact, they speedily decided that they didn't want to be found drowned in the same Mediterranean sea. If the disappointed and cursing man had had Perkins afar on the desert or on some lonely mountain peak he would have gladly wrung her neck, but on the yacht there were restraints.

Of course the craft put back. When Perkins reached the hotel she found my lady in tears and her complexion ruined for life. The count left Nice the same evening without having called; the captain of the yacht had no news for reporters, and to this day there are not half a dozen people who can elevate their eyebrows and look knowingly when a certain name is mentioned.

Perkins did not take advantage of the circumstance as another might. She simply used the incident as a lever when she wanted to cut short another flirtation. After she had stated her case with the force and clearness of an attorney at law she would hold up a forefinger and conclude with:

"Cut it short, my lady. I may not be there next time to doctor your wits and take your place, and then who would the world say?"

Why Hurry?

The scorching cyclist was on the road to Stratford-on-Avon. He was bent over the handle bars, and the beads which bespeak the strenuous toiler were trickling off his face.

"Hi, sonny," he called to a passing youth, "am I right for Shakespeare's house?"

"Yes, you're right, mister," was the dreamy reply of the leisurely youth, "but you needn't hurry. Shakespeare's dead."—London Answers.

Explosive Diamonds.

A curious fact about diamonds is that it is not uncommon for the crystals to explode as soon as they are brought up from the mine. Sometimes they have burst in the pockets or the warm hands of miners, due to the effect of increased temperature. Large stones are more likely to do this than small ones. Valuable stones have been destroyed in this way. To safeguard them some dealers place large diamonds in raw potatoes for safe transport from South Africa.

International Hens.

The advantages that people who live exactly on the line between two countries have in escaping the customs and other regulations of both countries have often been recounted. Probably the most picturesque instance of this kind of evasion occurred in the town of Nogales, which lies exactly on the boundary between Mexico and Arizona. On the United States side of the line in this town eggs were at one time made costly by the revision of the tariff schedule pertaining to that product, inasmuch as the hens in that region were chiefly owned on the Mexican side and were fed by the peasants on cheap Mexican grain.

One year a Maine Yankee arrived in Nogales with an eye to business. He was convinced that his opportunity lay in the high price of eggs. Accordingly he put up a long henhouse exactly across the boundary line. At the Mexican end he regularly fed his hens with low priced Mexican grain.

The fowls ate their grain in Mexico and then walked across the line into the United States to lay their eggs. The transaction was, of course, perfectly legitimate, for the proprietor of the henhouse smuggled neither grain nor eggs. But he availed himself of high prices on one side and low prices on the other.—New York Tribune.

Ministerial Association Organized

Monday afternoon, November 2, the Lutheran pastors of Bedford County met in the parlors of the Bedford House and effected an organization to be known as the Lutheran Ministerium Association of Bedford County, electing Rev. C. D. Russell of Everett, President, and Rev. H. W. Bender of Schellsburg, Secretary-Treasurer. Rev. M. L. Culler, D. D., and Rev. J. W. Lingle were appointed a committee on program and also instructed to prepare a constitution for adoption at the next regular meeting.

Rev. J. H. Diehl gave a very interesting and instructive address on a very important subject and Rev. C. D. Russell presented an exposition on I John 3: 9 in which he manifested a wide and thorough grasp of his subject.

The association will hold its next session on December 7 at Everett in the parlors of the Union Hotel. Secretary.

Change in the Fish Laws

Last week delegates from 21 fish protective associations in the state met at Harrisburg and agreed upon two bills which will be submitted to the next Legislature. The important features of these are: All fines collected to be turned into the state treasury, none to informers; appeals from the judgment of magistrates on good security, the case then to be tried by the court; creating of 30 wardens at $75 each; making possession of fish or illegal nets prima facie evidence of guilt; selling illegal fishing devices a felony; allowing two rods, two handlines or two of each to each fisherman; reducing number of trout that can be caught in a day to 25; changing bass season from July 1 to December 1.

A Winnipeg Sermon.

A story is going the rounds about one of the Winnipeg clergy, which he himself has told with great delight. A farmer and his wife came to Winnipeg on a visit, and on Sunday their host requested the farmer friend to go with him to church.

"No," said he, "I never go to church."

And his wife backed up his assertion.

The visitor was finally persuaded to go to a local church and was told the pastor was also an American. After the service he was introduced to the pastor, and the following conversation took place:

"Well, doctor," said the visitor, "I enjoyed your sermon."

"I am very pleased to hear that," replied the pastor.

"You know," explained the farmer, "I do not go to church very often, but that sermon of yours was the least like a sermon I ever heard."—Winnipeg Telegram.

Modern Witchcraft.

Says a correspondent of the London Chronicle: "This writer knows of a west country English farmer, a hard headed business man, who uses the latest machinery on his farm, yet holds the belief in pixies as firmly as any article of his religious creed. Having been visited by a series of minor misfortunes, he confided to the writer in the utmost seriousness his fear that he had offended a pixy by inadvertently stepping into a fairy ring and stated that he intended going on the morrow to the white witch at Exeter to get further misfortune averted. And this level headed business man took a day from his farm in the busiest time of the year and journeyed to Exeter and back—a matter of some sixty miles—for this purpose. On his return he was as one who had cast off a heavy burden. But the white witch's mysteries no persuasion could induce him to reveal."

A Violin For a Vane.

One of the most curious vanes to be seen on any church in Great Britain is that at Great Gonerby, a parish adjoining Grantham, in Lincolnshire. It is in the form of a fiddle and a bow and is unusually large. Its history is a curious one. Many years ago a peasant resided in Great Gonerby who eked out a modest livelihood by performing on an old violin, which was almost a part of his life. At last he decided to emigrate and out in the far west prospered and became a rich man. One day he sent to the clergyman at Great Gonerby a sum sufficient to build a church and attached to the gift the curious condition that a metal replica of his old fiddle and bow should be on the summit of the edifice. The gift was accepted, and the vane may still be seen on the church.

Club Stories.

Two stories are told of the time when the Athenaeum club, while its clubhouse was undergoing renovation, was hospitably taken in by the United Service club.

One was of a distinguished officer who, after a vain hunt for his umbrella, was heard to mutter, "That comes of letting those—bishops into the club!"

The counterblast is to the effect that when an Athenaeum man, while his club was still the guest of the other, asked for the librarian, the answer was, "Please, sir, he is in the dining room carving the roast beef!"

AUTO PROOF ROADWAY

Coal Tar and Pitch Used to Finish It.

ALL DIRT MUST BE REMOVED

Before Laying Surfacing Materials Roads Ought to Be Perfectly Dry, Says Connecticut Highway Commissioner—Resist Autos' Bad Effects.

The racking of brains to find a road surfacing which will withstand the wear and tear of automobile traffic that has been going on among road-makers in the United States and Europe of late is resulting in a return to coal tar, which thirty years ago was thought to be worthless for any purpose and today furnishes mankind so many different products and by-products, some of them far removed from the building of stone roads. Highway Commissioner Macdonald of Connecticut, ever among the leaders in these matters, has worked out a specification which has already been adopted by state highway commissioners who have heard of it and have obtained a copy, says a Hartford (Conn.) dispatch. It calls for a combination of coal tar and pitch and fully as much of the success with which the road laid by means of it resists the action of auto tires is due to the manner in which it is put down as to the medium which binds the road surface into a solid, perfectly cohesive waterproof whole.

Something over a year ago Commissioner Macdonald chose a very hot day and laid his specification on most of the roads in Bushnell park, about the Connecticut state capitol in Hartford and the present condition of these roads, which is as good as the day the coal tar combination was put down, testifies to the excellence of the specification. Not only that, but these roads are unusually good ones on which to try out the coal tar, for the reason that they are used by autos far more than by any other vehicles.

It happens that before he became state highway commissioner a dozen years ago Mr. Macdonald had been for years at the head of a New Haven firm which laid and still lays tar and asphalt pavements, and he was peculiarly fitted to grapple with the destructiveness of auto tires on macadam roads when it became a question of seeing the fine system of roads in Connecticut which he is building disinte-

How To Gain Flesh

Persons have been known to gain a pound a day by taking an ounce of Scott's Emulsion. It is strange, but it often happens.

Somehow the ounce produces the pound; it seems to start the digestive machinery going properly, so that the patient is able to digest and absorb his ordinary food which he could not do before, and that is the way the gain is made.

A certain amount of flesh is necessary for health; if you have not got it you can get it by taking

NEED OF GOOD ROADS.

Part of a Transporting Machine—Their Neglect Mars the Whole.

"To appreciate the necessity for good roads in America one should consider the road as part of a transporting machine. The machine is composed by a horse, a wagon and a road. If any one of the three is poor, the machine is poor and ineffective. Only a small load can be drawn, and that slowly. We have been spending thousands of dollars building up the breed of horses and improving wagons and have allowed the roads to run down and offset our costly upbreeding. Is it not time we stopped and considered the common sense course, to build up all three simultaneously?"

This unique presentation of the necessity of good roads was offered by Honorable S. Earle, the candidate for governor of Michigan on the Republican ticket, to the autoists, roadmakers and farmers which recently held a convention at Buffalo, and it aptly fits the case, making a profound impression on the farmers present. "The same situation exists when the motive power of the vehicle is furnished by an engine," he continued, "so that autoists and farmers are at one on the good roads question. The automobile needs a perfect road to accomplish all it is capable of accomplishing. Then let us be sensible and provide the possibility of getting the best out of it."

"The antagonism of the farmer to the automobilist is entirely unwarranted. There are some farmers who are as offensive as some automobilists. The product of the automobile factories of Michigan sold for $18,000,000 in a year, and 75 per cent came from outside the state from the rich and well to do. It went to stockholders and employees and through them to the stores and farmers. The industry made possible by the users of automobiles meant a great deal to the farmers of Michigan, and it means as much to the farmers of many other states."

Today's Suggestion by Ellen Stan.*PRETTY FLARE SKIRT.

SKIRTS are of more interest at this season of the year than they are during the summer months, for it is during the winter that there is a demand for separate skirts to wear with heavy coats of broadcloth or fur. The tailored one piece costume will be worn early in the season with furs, but later on the separate coat and skirt will take its place. This does not mean that the tailored suit will not be worn, but preference is shown for the separate coat.

The plain gored models, with the gores straight and narrow, are the preferred style of skirt, though some circular and plaited ones are shown.

The advantage of the gored skirt over the circular one is that it will not sag over the hips, as the seams, no matter how much on the bias they are, can be stayed with straight pieces of the selvaige stitched in with the seam. In the back a neat finish can be given the placket by cutting the selvaige edge stitched in with the seam wide enough at the top for a placket facing. This makes a neater finish than a separate facing, as it does away with all raw edges and extra bulk.

This skirt is especially good for stout figures, as the number of gores makes one appear slimmer. A pretty dark blue broadcloth or serge with a satin waist to match in color will make a very neat costume for morning wear during the coming season. The skirt can be left perfectly plain or trimmed with bias bands of the satin.

The favored colorings are smoke and seal gray, peacock blue, dull greens and reds, navy blue and black. Novelties have been seen to some extent, but preference has been shown for plain materials, broadcloth being the favored material, then serge and cheviot. Some of the new serges are in basket weave in quite a number of pretty color combinations. This skirt is in round length with under box plait at the back or in habit style. The pattern is cut in eight sizes—from 22 to 36 inches bust measure. To copy it for the average person it requires 9 yards of material 36 inches wide or 7½ yards of material 44 inches wide.

Any reader of this paper who desires to secure this pattern may do so by sending 10 cents to this office. Give the number, 3919, state size desired and write the full address plainly. The pattern will be forwarded promptly by mail.

When and How to Eat

The normal sense of hunger makes the plainest food tasty and delicious. Without hunger, that is, without the call of nature for food, one is not justified in eating, says a celebrated physician. It is under a condition of repletion and surfeiting that artificial hunger must be created by taking various condiments, species, rich sauces and savories, and stimulating articles. All of these are unwholesome, and none of them should be resorted to except in sickness and disease, when it is often desirable and

A Walking Record.
J. M. Davis and F. H. Blake, of Altoona, established a walking record hard to beat. These young men left Altoona for Bedford, a distance of thirty-seven miles, by road, at 5:06 a. m. and arrived in Bedford at 1:06 p. m., walking the distance in exactly eight hours, taking dinner at that place.

The next day they turned for home at 8:45 a. m. and arrived at Loysburg, a distance of 16 miles, in three hours and thirty-five minutes; they left Loysburg for Curry, a distance of ten miles at 1:15 p. m. and arrived in Curry station at 3:22, making the distance in two hours and seven minutes. The whole trip amounted to sixty-three miles and was traveled in thirteen hours and forty-two minutes. Only one stop was made in the whole journey, making this a remarkably good walk. This makes the best record of their walking history.

MANKATO'S GOOD ROAD.

Minnesota City Has Made a Mudless and Dustless Pavement.

Mankato, Minn., has solved the problem of finding a durable pavement at small expense and one that can be used on steep grades as readily as on a level surface.

First the driveway was narrowed to thirty feet, curbed, guttered and boulevarded. Then it was excavated to the depth of six inches and surfaced. Five inches of dry crushed limestone one and a half to two inches in diameter was put on and rolled down with a ten ton roller.

Boiling tar from the local gas works was applied until the entire surface was covered. Then, says the Cement Age, a layer of broken stone an inch to an inch and a quarter in diameter, mixed with coarse gravel, was applied on the surface in proportion of three parts of stone to one of gravel. This was first mixed dry on a platform and then thoroughly mixed with hot tar and applied on the surface two inches thick and tamped into place to conform with the surface of the street.

Dry domestic cement was then applied to the surface, and the street was again rolled. Then a coating of sand was applied and the roller again used. The pavement was allowed to stand for two weeks before the street was thrown open to travel.

The cost was 80 cents a lineal foot to the property owners on each side of the street or, rather, would have been had the entire cost been assessed against them. The street has a practically waterproof pavement: inches thick, and it is impossible for the elements to attack the surface. The pavement has now stood two winters and shows not the slightest wear. It gives off no dust in summer, although it is not sprinkled.

Automobiles and Good Roads.

The automobile has become the most important factor in the upbuilding of our public highways and has led to the reconstruction of more miles of good roads than any other conveyance ever introduced. While it may be true that it is more destructive of highways than any other vehicle, it is equally true that automobilism is only pleasurable upon the best roads man can construct. Thus it must and shall be that the more automobiles we use the better will our roads become for all classes of vehicles and traffic.

How Oil Saved the Rock Roads.

"I am busy day and night repairing washouts in the rock roads because of the heavy rains," Oscar Koehler, county surveyor, said the other morning at Kansas City. "There is no doubt in my mind that the oiling of the rock roads is a great economy. There has not been a single washout in the roads that were oiled. The oil serves to pack the gravel so that it resists the erosion of the flood waters."

Wearily Widowhood.

The death of the husband not only blights the life of a Bengali widow, but makes the rest of her existence a state of unmitigated misery and privations. She is required to fast on every eleventh day of the moon, when she is debarrd from all sorts of food and drink for twenty-four hours. Her sufferings from thirst on hot days of summer are extremely painful, but she must go through them. The widow must live on one meal a day and eschew meat and fish. She must renounce ornaments and all sorts of luxuries. The idea of such a state of misery of his widow keeps a man from hazardous enterprises, not because he is afraid to die, but because his death means so much misery to his wife.—East Indian Mirror.

Naming the Picture.

The artist was of the impressionist school. He had just given the last touches to a purple and blue canvas when his wife came into the studio. "My dear," said he, "this is the landscape I wanted you to suggest a title for."

"Why not call it 'Home?'" she said after a long look.

"Home?" Why?"

"Because there's no place like it," she replied meekly.—Glasgow Times.

Bound to Make Somebody.

By FRANK H. SWEET.

Copyright, 1908, by Frank H. Sweet.

"LADY, what you call-a-dis?"

The lady's eyes were raised languidly from the book she was reading. But as they became focused upon the strange figure before her they acquired a momentary interest.

"What is it?" she asked.

"Dis," and the boy leaped eagerly over her chair, without removing his dirty finger from the picture which he held up for her inspection.

She drew back with a slight frown. But it was only momentary and was succeeded by a quiet look of amusement.

"It is an elephant," she answered. "Have you never seen one?"

"Dey ain't live in my country, no. I tink dey is Ameriky."

"Oh, no; they are not Americans," she said, smiling. "They belong to a warm climate. You have not been over long, I suppose?"

"I tink it be free—what you call him—mout's," the boy replied doubtfully.

"What made you come to this out of the way place?" she asked, after a moment's silence. "Surely there is no work here for your father and mother."

"Stantly the merry smile disappeared, and his face became grave and thoughtful.

"De fader an' modder die on de vessel with de fever," he said slowly, with an awed look in his blue eyes. "I haf two-tree dollar, an' I no like stay in de big New York with de brudders an' sisters. It be bad place for small peopoles. We come on de boat till de monna be gone, den we walk an' walk till de little ones be tired. Den we stop. Den we be here."

The lady had unconsciously allowed the book to slip from her lap to the sand at her feet, and her face was losing its expression of bored indifference.

"Are you the oldest?" she asked.

"I be de fader now," he replied gravely. "I tink we live here. It be nice place for bring up de little ones. I like it more as any place I see. It make me tink of home country—only betta."

"Not better than your own country?" she said, in some surprise.

"Yes, Ameriky de betta country for teach little ones. Dey learn t'ings an' make somebody, mebbe."

"How many of you are there," she asked, "and how do you manage to get along? What do you do?"

"Dere be two brudders an' two sisters," he replied, with the smile returning to his face. "an' dey all be more little as me. An' we get along fust rate. We find de clams an' de crabs an' de feesh an' sell to de peo

"Den I tink 'bout dat old—'bout fo'teen or f'fteen. You have some crab tomorrow?"

"Yes, you may bring me a few, and—oh, Paoli, what is the matter with your hands?"

The boy laughed and held up his hands complacently.

"I wash dem—scrub, scrub, scrub—an' I make de brudders an' sisters wash. An' we clean de room an' fix up t'ings. I see dat Ameriky peopoles no had dirt like peopoles in home country. We Ameriky peopoles now." Then a sudden sparkle came into his eyes.

"De school begin next mont', an' I hab de brudders an' sisters to go. I got dem all dress up nice like Ameriky peopoles. I tink dey make somebody."

"But why don't you get some American clothes and go to school yourself, Paoli?"

The boy's face became grave.

"I like to, but no ready yet. Dese t'ings costa monna, an' de fader—the ready smile returning to his face—"haf to look out for de little ones. When dey go to school somebody haf to make de monna. Mebbe I go some time."

The next day Mrs. Roper was again on the piazza when she saw him coming up the path. This time he had no basket, and there was no smile on his face. Instead of going round to the kitchen he came directly up the piazza steps.

"What is it?" she asked kindly.

"Dis." And he took from beneath his jacket a pair of small opera glasses.

"My glasses!" she exclaimed in surprise. "I had not even missed them. Where did you find them?"

"My brudder—stole dem."

"What?"

"Stole dem," he repeated gravely. "He come with crabs one day an' see dem on de table an' take dem. He mean to sell, but get scare an' tell de sisters. Dey tell me."

"But what did he want to sell them for? Did he need the money?"

The boy flushed and hesitated a little before answering.

"He—he tell de sisters dat he buy clothes for Paoli so all go school togedder. He verra small boy," apologetically.

"Yes, I know he is."

Paoli looked at her anxiously.

"He musta be punish," he said in a troubled voice, "an' I like for you to help me. He be good bey an' smart an' I tink make somebody some time but greens and yellows, and the buttons had all disappeared. But his trousers had fared better. Perhaps the plant which had furnished the coloring material had more vitality or the dyer had been more conscientious in his work. At any rate, their flaming glory had been scarcely dimmed by the vicissitudes they had been through. They reached only as far as his knees—below that was the firm, brown skin—but they and the small little head covering which was neither hat nor cap soon became the envy of the small boys of Seaview.

Originally Seaview had been a small settlement which had furnished the surrounding farmers with the few necessary things they could not raise. But one day an artist stroller wandered in and did the place the honor to be pleased. After that came a gradual transformation. A dozen or more cottages took possession of the more picturesque points, and here and there a hotel rose to meet the wants of those who could not own cottages. It had the reputation of being very exclusive.

When the group of strangely dressed children came into town there were many who gazed at them with suspicion. But as the days and weeks went by and nothing was missed the distrust gradually gave place to idle curiosity. A few even showed some friendly interest. The children were neither beggars nor thieves; that much was now conceded by all. At present they seemed perfectly able to take care of themselves. When cold weather arrived it would be time enough to take some action in the matter.

Every day they could be seen on the beach, along the banks of the river, on the wharf, catching crabs, digging clams and fishing. Even the tiny little fellow in picturesque kilt spent most of his time in racing up and down the beach with crab net and basket. Every morning the girls went back into the fields after wild flowers or over to the shallow lake after pond lilies. And as the days went by and the people became more familiar with their bright faces and eager ways they grew more liberal in their patronage. The signs of prosperity began to show in the disappearance of the shabby rags and the substitution of such garments as were worn by the village children. The transformation began with the little fellow in the kilt and extended by slow degrees to the girls and the other small boys.

The oldest boy still wore the faded jacket and red trousers. He was here and there and everywhere, working, smiling, asking questions, making notes and taking his new knowledge home to the children.

A few days later as Mrs. Roper stood idly on her piazza she saw him going toward the kitchen entrance with a basket of crabs.

"Say, boy," she called, "come here a minute!"

The basket was quickly set upon the ground, and he hurried across to the piazza.

"You haven't told me your name yet," she suggested.

"Name Paoli; fader's an' grandfader's name before me."

"Well, Paoli, I want you to tell your sister to bring me a large bunch of pond lilies tomorrow. How old are you, Paoli?"

"I nebba know. I tink I pretty old. I see a good many t'ings. How old you s'pose I be?"

"I should say about fourteen or fifteen."

"Den I tink 'bout dat old—'bout fo'teen or f'fteen. You have some crab tomorrow?"

"Yes, you may bring me a few, and—oh, Paoli, what is the matter with your hands?"

The boy laughed and held up his hands complacently.

"I wash dem—scrub, scrub, scrub—an' I make de brudders an' sisters wash. An' we clean de room an' fix up t'ings. I see dat Ameriky peopoles no had dirt like peopoles in home country. We Ameriky peopoles now." Then a sudden sparkle came into his eyes.

"De school begin next mont', an' I hab de brudders an' sisters to go. I got dem all dress up nice like Ameriky peopoles. I tink dey make somebody."

"But why don't you get some American clothes and go to school yourself, Paoli?"

The boy's face became grave.

"I like to, but no ready yet. Dese t'ings costa monna, an' de fader—the ready smile returning to his face—"haf to look out for de little ones. When dey go to school somebody haf to make de monna. Mebbe I go some time."

The next day Mrs. Roper was again on the piazza when she saw him coming up the path. This time he had no basket, and there was no smile on his face. Instead of going round to the kitchen he came directly up the piazza steps.

"What is it?" she asked kindly.

"Dis." And he took from beneath his jacket a pair of small opera glasses.

"My glasses!" she exclaimed in surprise. "I had not even missed them. Where did you find them?"

"My brudder—stole dem."

"What?"

"Stole dem," he repeated gravely. "He come with crabs one day an' see dem on de table an' take dem. He mean to sell, but get scare an' tell de sisters. Dey tell me."

"But what did he want to sell them for? Did he need the money?"

The boy flushed and hesitated a little before answering.

"He—he tell de sisters dat he buy clothes for Paoli so all go school togedder. He verra small boy," apologetically.

"Yes, I know he is."

Paoli looked at her anxiously.

"He musta be punish," he said in a troubled voice, "an' I like for you to help me. He be good bey an' smart an' I tink make somebody some time if he no get bad. He musta be punish for lesson."

"But how am I to help you?"

"You been tell me rake grass an' pick up leaves an' t'ings. S'pose you haf Luigi do it. He hate dat kind work. He love catch fish an' crabs an' t'ings like dat. Mebbe it take him two, tree week, an' you musta pay him no'ting—not'ing!" emphatically.

She looked surprised.

"I do not wish any one to work for me without pay."

"He stole glass, you make him work. Dat all right, an' be lesson for him. He willing. I haf long talk with him this morning, an' he verra, verra sorry an' say he do it no more. But he must be punish."

"Very well, if you think it is best. But you must not be too hard with him, Paoli. He is such a bright little fellow."

As he was going down the steps she called him back.

"What are you going to do this winter, Paoli?"

"Catch feesh an' clams an' t'ings," he replied, the gravity not yet gone from his face.

"But you cannot live in that barn all winter. You would freeze."

"We no need live dere," he said eagerly. "We get fine place soon—f-i-n-e. De bazaar-man go off in de winter, an' he say we haf his place for two dolla a mont'—tree room an' stove

When a strange woman came for the soiled clothes, says a writer in the Baltimore News, the mistress of the house came to the conclusion that her own laundress had simply employed a new messenger and made no comment on the circumstance. But when two weeks had gone by and still the old laundress—known as Susan—did not appear the mistress of the house felt that she would be lacking in her duty if she did not make some inquiry about her.

"Where is Susan?" she asked the tall, bony woman who came for the clothes.

"She has gone to Pennsylvania to live, yessum," returned the woman with composure. "She went to Pennsylvania some time ago, an' she lef' goody for yuh, but s' long yuh didn't seem tuh notice I didn't say nuffin'."

"That will be nice. Now, I have been thinking of a plan, Paoli, that may be of use to both of us. When I came here this spring I found that one of my shutters had become loose and a window was broken. The rain and snow had driven in and spoiled a carpet and some furniture. This winter I wish to leave some one in charge. I shall want him to visit the place at least once a week and see that the shutters and windows are secure and everything all right. Several of my neighbors feel about their cottages as I do mine. Now, you could look after them all, Paoli, and still have most of your time for other things. We will pay altogether, say, $15 a month. Would that be satisfactory?"

Paoli did not answer for a moment, but his eyes were shining. Then:

"Fifteen dolla—a mont'. Dat will pay for all t'ings, an' we all go to school togedder. It be gr-a-n-d!"

Poisonous Baby Coaches.

"In buying this first coach," said the physician, "be sure, madam, to get a nonpoisonous one."

The young and pretty mother gave a cry of fear.

"Gracious me!" she said. "Is there poison in baby coaches?"

"There is sometimes," the physician asserted. "Only last August I was suddenly summoned to Ocean Grove. The little firstborn of a popular evangelist was very low. The child died. The coach was the cause of his death."

"It was a new coach, and while riding in it on the romantic shores of Fletcher lake the baby sucked vigorously the beautiful bright green strap confining it to its seat. That strap had been painted with a paint heavy with arsenic, and a few hours after my arrival the babe passed away, a victim of a poisonous baby coach."

"So, madam, insist on a coach decorated with pure and harmless vegetable decorations. Examine the article as though you were a food inspector."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Man Who Shaved Him.

The man of learning strolled into his club at about 11 a. m.

"It's a strange thing," he told the members present, "but I was shaved this morning by a man who really is, I suppose, a little above the ordinary barber. I know, for instance, that he took a double first class at Oxford, that he studied at Heidelberg afterward and spent several years in other foreign educational centers. He has also contributed scientific articles to our best magazines and has numbered among his intimate friends men of the highest social standing. And yet," exclaimed the savant, "he can't shave a man decently!"

"By Jove!" exclaimed the younger members in astonishment. "But, with all those accomplishments, what is he a barber for?"

"Oh, he isn't a barber!" said the booby, smiling. "I shaved myself this morning!"—London Tatler.

What Matter Really Is.

Throughout the greater part of space we find simple unmodified ether, elastic and massive, squirming and quivering with energy, but stationary as a whole. Here and there, however, we find specks of electrified ether, isolated, yet connected together by fields of force and a state of violent locomotion. These "specks" are what in the form of prodigious aggregates we know as "matter," and the greater number of sensible phenomena, such as viscosity, heat, sound, electric conduction, absorption and emission of light, belong to these differentiated or individualized and dissociated or electrified specks, which are either flying alone or are restoring with orbital motion in groups. The "matter" so constituted—built up of these well separated particles, with interstices enormous in proportion to the size of the specks—must be an excessively porous or gossamer-like structure, like a cobweb, a milky way or a comet's tail, and the inertia of matter—that is, the combined inertia of a group of electrified ether particles—must be a mere residual fraction of the mass of the main bulk of undifferentiated continuous fluid occupying the same space, of which fluid the particles are hypothetically composed and in which they freely move.—Sir Oliver Lodge in "Modern Views of Electricity."

EXPERIMENTS WITH BACTERIA

Inoculated Seed Shows Advantage in Many Plants.

Schellsburg, Pa. Bedford Gazette:—A complete inspection has been made of the legumes set and not set with nitrogen bacteria, and the results are such as ought to be revolutionary. The season was particularly good for determining the value of inoculation.

Mammoth clover was treated with bacteria and sown on land of Joseph Hull. Untreated seed was also sown under the same conditions; both sprouted nicely, but where the seed was treated a good stand still remains, while where the seed was not treated the entire portion of the field dry-killed. The same experience resulted with medium clover on lands of C. B. Culp, and the same thing occurred with garden peas where equal chances of growth were given.

Vetch, not treated, dry-killed. Cow peas, soy beans and alfalfa treated, pulled through the dry weather without even yellowing and made an excellent crop, except the alfalfa. The latter, however, was planted very late. It has made enough growth to pull it through the winter.

The work this year also showed clearly the value of lime in connection with the clovers and the abundance of bacteria resulting from a small application of lime. Before spring we are going to have a good lime spreader to use in connection with this work and make light applications of lime before harrowing.

Now, it is only common sense to say that, if untreated seed dry-kills in a very dry season the treated plants will make a more vigorous growth than the untreated. This also corresponds with our experience of last year. So we are all convinced of the value of treating the seed and many will do so next year who were sceptical heretofore. A. B. Ross.

Called to a Western Charge

It was with much regret that the people of Hyndman saw Rev. J. F. Kerlin and wife leave today for Sioux City, Ia., where Rev. Kerlin has accepted the pastorate of Grace Reformed Church. Although Rev. Kerlin and his charming wife have lived here but three years they have made a host of friends, not only in their own church circles but in every section of the town. Rev. Kerlin, besides being an energetic Christian gentleman, was an advocate of everything which would serve to place the town on a higher moral and intellectual basis. He not only brought the Lecture Course here, himself being president of the Pittsburgh Lyceum Bureau, but he kept every one else interested so that for three years we have enjoyed these entertainments. He was also the secretary of the School Board, leaving a vacancy which will be difficult to fill.

We extend to him our most sincere wishes for a successful and pleasant stay among those westerners; and although our loss is almost irreparable, we congratulate Grace Reformed Church on receiving such an efficient and capable man as Rev. J. F. Kerlin as its pastor.

A good line of hand and dash lanterns.

OPEN A BOX

of HIGHLAND LINEN Writing Paper and you will be immediately impressed with "that indescribable something called style" which pervades it.

It is discernible in the beautiful fabric finish, in the shape of the paper and envelopes—in fact, the very box itself bespeaks refinement and good taste.

This is why the sale of HIGHLAND LINEN has excelled that of any other social correspondence paper on the market.

Let your next list of purchases include a box of HIGHLAND LINEN. We sell it for 25c a box.

Practical Things. There is some good fiction in The Ladies' Home Journal for November, but there are also practical things—things that you can have and do.

"What Forty Girls Have Found Out," by Laura A. Smith, is one article. Miss Smith is the girl who made the tour of the churches for The Journal, and you remember how interesting that was.

Here are some other titles: "How to Protect Your Plants," by Frances Duncan; "Good Things for Breakfast," by Maria Parloa; "Good Taste and Bad Taste in Dressing the Hair," a series of pictures showing the different effects.

Among the most practical things in the world are The Ladies' Home Journal Patterns. More and more women are using them successfully. We want to help you; we are helping other women utilize these patterns. You can see them at our counter.

The Journal, itself, is on sale each month, at 15 cents per copy, or we will forward your annual subscription direct to the publishers at $1.50 per year.
